

BRING BACK THE ROPE!

How evil race lobby tried to shield the killer...

BRITAIN'S most hated quango, the so-called 'Commission for Racial Equality' (CRE) tried to prevent Curtis Howard's extradition from America to face murder charges in Britain. CRE spokesperson Paul Stephenson bleated that Britain's legal system was 'racist'. Howard's lawyers seized on the outburst to delay his return.

Catherine Ayling's family are still bitter about the CRE's interference, which prolonged the agony of waiting for Howard to be brought to justice. Commenting on the CRE's claims of 'racism', Catherine's sister Sylvia Hartington said: "He (Stephenson) should be ashamed of himself. The case had nothing to do with him and there he was trying to rub in our pain."

This newspaper agrees that the CRE behaved disgracefully in trying to use this case for their sick brand of political propaganda. The British National Party firmly believes that everyone should be equally treated before the law, whatever their race. We say: close down the CRE!

VICTIM: Catherine Ayling was brutally stabbed to death by a man she met while on an exchange visit to America

KILLER: Psychopath Curtis Howard stalked his victim for several weeks before killing her in a frenzied knife attack

THE British National Party has renewed its call for restoration of capital punishment following the brutal slaying of an innocent young woman.

Last month, Curtis Howard, an American national, was found guilty of the killing of British student Catherine Ayling three years ago.

Catherine had met Howard briefly during an exchange visit to the United States. She was persuaded to go on a dinner date with him — friends said she did it in order not to appear 'racist'.

STALKING

But Howard became besotted with the girl and began pestering and stalking her relentlessly.

When she returned to Britain, he secretly followed her. After breaking into her family's home and making threats, Howard was arrested and thrown out of Britain.

FALSE PASSPORT

But making use of Britain's non-existent entry controls, he re-entered the country on a false passport.

Howard then tracked down Catherine Ayling at college and savagely stabbed her to death.

As this newspaper goes to print, an Old Bailey judge is considering the sentence which will be given.

But whatever the sentence passed, Catherine Ayling's family will have to live with the fear that Howard might eventually escape or be released from jail, thus putting their lives at risk again.

The cost of keeping a dangerous killer in jail is substantial — one estimate puts it at up to fifty thousand pounds per year. In twenty years, therefore, the taxpayer would have to fork out a million pounds for the privilege of keeping a murderer in conditions of luxury.

Quite apart from the huge financial cost to the taxpayer is the moral question of whether the punishment should fit the crime.

BOASTING

How often do we hear of vicious murderers, child-killers or rapists boasting of a life of luxury behind bars, while their victims have no such privilege?

Murderers behind bars have the prospect of eventual release under Britain's soft judicial system, but their victims do not.

The British National Party therefore agrees with the eighty-six per cent of British people who say: restore capital punishment.

MURDER

A BNP government would restore the option of capital punishment for the worst cases of murder, particularly where children were the victims of such crimes.

DISBAND THE EVIL C.R.E.

THE British National Party has long campaigned for the closing down of the so-called 'Commission for Racial Equality.'

The BNP believes the CRE is an organisation of pure evil. Along with all the other paraphernalia of the £billion-a-year race industry, the CRE has in fact created nothing but hatred between black and white people.

Whites are continually being abused and insulted by the ever-increasing arrogance and insolent demands of the 'race lobby'. Equally, the position of blacks living in Britain is hardly being helped by the anger which these self-appointed race 'experts' create within the white community.

Last year the CRE made its most disgusting and obscene blunder yet, when its spokesperson held up the extradition of a dangerous killer to British courts on the grounds that our legal system is 'racist'.

Just who the hell do these people think they are!

There is an old saying in Britain: "when in Rome do as the Romans do."

The British National Party would not dream of criticising the laws and customs of foreign countries. When we hear of westerners being punished for offending Muslim laws in some Eastern country, our view is that if you go to these countries it is your duty to obey their laws, and British people cannot complain if they are punished for misbehaving in someone else's country.

Yet according to the bully-boys of outfits such as the CRE, Britain must bend over backwards to accommodate the 'rights' of foreigners. This almost ended in a gross miscarriage of justice when the CRE tried to block the extradition of a wanted killer, Curtis Howard.

This is why we say it's high time we closed down the CRE, and stopped squandering taxpayers' money.

LIES, DAMNED LIES AND STATISTICS

How the politicians swindle you with false immigration figures

THE Old Gang politicians in Westminster have repeatedly assured the British People that immigration is now at an end. This month, British Nationalist can reveal that this is a wicked and deliberate falsehood on the part of our political masters.

As recently as June this year, one Sasthi Brata wrote in the Sunday Times that coloured immigration has been "cut drastically and progressively in the past 20 years" and is now "barely 5,000 annually."

HUMBUG

This is the type of reassuring humbug which has been pumped out by the Tory, Labour and Liberal establishment for the past four decades.

Since the 1950s, when mass immigration began, arrivals from the New Commonwealth and other parts of the third world have steadily increased.

MISLEADING

The figures on immigration usually quoted by politicians are, to put it mildly, extremely misleading. The Home Office figure for people "accepted for settlement" in 1993 was 55,500. In other words, these were migrants given permanent right of residence in the UK.

Yet these 'official' immigrants are only a portion of the actual number of people who arrive in Britain for permanent residence.

Labour migrants (around 30,000 each year) and their dependents (around 15,000) can enter with work permits of up to four years without being counted in the official settlement figures. Many simply have their permits extended in order to stay in Britain for a longer term.

'ASYLUM' CON

By far the biggest immigration con is the so-called 'asylum' legislation. This is a very useful way for politicians to allow huge numbers of immigrants to by-pass the official statistics.

Put simply, anyone in the world can come to Britain and stay for at least two years if they claim to be a political 'refugee'. The perpetual civil wars and conflicts in Africa and Asia in effect allows anyone from those regions to be a 'refugee'.

In 1993 22,370 'refugees' pitched up in Britain. Of these, seven per cent were allowed to remain permanently in Britain and a further 47 per cent were given "exceptional leave" to remain. In other words, over twelve thousand 'refugees' were allowed to take up permanent residence — yet only 5,620 of these persons feature as "acceptances" in the 1993 statistics, and none of their dependents.

EXPELLED

And what of the 45 per cent who are refused 'refugee' status? Less than a tenth are eventually expelled from the UK. Almost all are able to stay, usually on an illegal basis. Again, these people do not count as 'official' immigrants, because 'officially' they have not been given permission to stay. Simple, isn't it?

According to David Coleman, Oxford University lecturer in population trends, "a realistic but still imperfect figure" for annual immigration would be around 80,000 per year.

Even by adding up the large numbers of immigrants who enter legally, the exact number can never be known because there is no way to quantify the huge number of illegal entrants.

ILLEGAL IMMIGRANTS

About 6,000 are dealt with as illegal immigrants each year, but most officials accept that this is just a fraction of the number who go undetected. According to a recent report in the Mail on Sunday, "as many as 100,000 illegal immigrants settle in Britain each year."

To quote David Coleman again: "Continuing immigration is not just a 'mopping up' process of old obligations. It has a new dynamic behind it from new marriages, asylum claimants and other sources. Immigrants can enter for one, short term pretext (tourism, visiting relatives) then stay long term on a different basis (study, marriage, asylum)."

The new Brits: This picture was taken recently at a pop concert in Britain. Politicians may tell lies about the numbers of immigrants settling in our country, but our own eyes reveal the truth

The fact is that the Government welcomes mass immigration, whether legal or illegal. It is a useful tool for the politicians' policy of divide and rule. Tory, Labour and Liberal politicians know they can buy millions of cheap votes by playing the 'anti-racist' card at election time.

British motor industry under threat as firms move to Far East

JUST two months ago in a special by-election edition of BN we warned of the threat to Dagenham's car industry from far-eastern imports.

Britain's last mass-production car firm, Rover, has now been taken over by the German multi-national BMW, and Britain has therefore in effect lost control over her motor industry.

It is therefore with considerable alarm that British workers have learned of plans for Europe's car-makers to switch production to the Far East. Indeed, many have already done so.

The bowl-of-rice-a-day 'coolie' labour of the third world has led firms such as General Motors, BMW, Fiat, Ford, Renault and Volkswagen to set up shop in China, India, Viet Nam and Indonesia.

Commenting on the shift to cheap third world labour, Fiat boss Giorgio Garuzzo said: "We are earning good money now — huge money — we're very, very happy."

The average weekly wage of a British car worker is around £200. In China it is around £6, and in Viet Nam just £3.

PROFITS

It is therefore not surprising that manufacturers seek bigger profits by cutting wage costs.

A British National Party government would never have let the UK car industry fall into the hands of the multi-nationals. The BNP would make it illegal for a foreign company to take over a British one, and would enforce strict import curbs to prevent unfair competition by third-world based companies.

Britain's car industry was one the envy of the world — precisely because our firms were protected from unfair competition. The BNP believes it is futile to compete with countries who allow virtual slave labour. We would ensure car production — and jobs — remained in Britain.

Under a BNP government, most manufactured goods would be banned — thus leading to full employment for British workers.

The British home market for cars could support an industry on the scale of that of the 1950s, if unfair foreign competition was banned.

Car production is not the only industry which is shifting towards the third world. Almost any manufacturing production can be done cheaper in China — and if the Tories, Labour and Liberals have their way, this is precisely what will happen under their 'free market' policies.

WOMAN ATTACKED BY VICIOUS SEX-GANG

Victim treated "like an animal" by vicious wilding gang thugs

AN EVIL gang of thugs put a Leicester woman through a terrifying and revolting sex-ordeal last month.

The 23-year-old woman was too shocked to give any details of the attack, but a police spokesman said the wilding gang treated the victim "like an animal."

SEXUAL ATTACK

Detective Sergeant Nick Hudson said: "This woman has changed from an outgoing lively person to a quiet introvert. We believe a serious sexual attack took place and have specially-trained officers trying to coax the story from her."

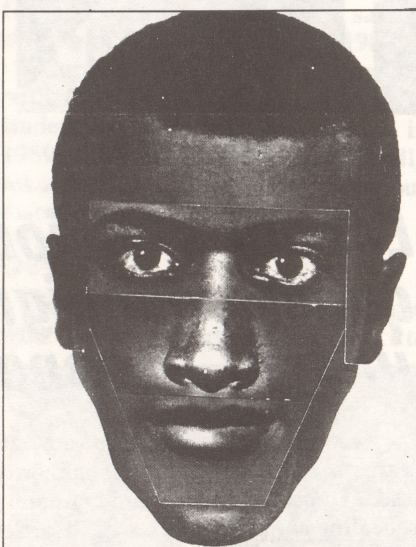

The attack has shocked and stunned local people in the St Matthews area of Leicester, which is normally a quiet, middle-class estate.

Police are playing down the racial aspect of the case, but some local whites told British Nationalist they feared the attack could have been racially-motivated.

VIOLENT RAPE

The attack is the latest in a series of violent rapes, sexual assaults and muggings carried out by American-style 'wilding' gangs.

The term was coined by the New York press to describe urban gangs who prey on law-abiding citizens apparently at random. Often robbery does not appear to be the main reason for the attacks; the prime motive seems to be to simply to torture or humiliate the victims either by sexual assault or severe beating. British women are increasingly the target of such attacks.

Does anyone in Bedfordshire County Council speak English?

LAST month dozens of people in Bedfordshire phoned the BNP Bookshop to complain about a leaflet put through their letter boxes by Bedfordshire County Council. An extract is shown on the right.

The leaflet, apparently explaining the County Structure Plan, was written in Punjabi. But for those of us who are not quite as fluent in Punjabi as we should be, the council thoughtfully printed a translation on the back of the leaflet — in Bengali!

As a generous token of goodwill to English speakers, a tiny paragraph in the bottom left hand corner of the leaflet gave a phone number to ring in order to obtain an English translation.

British Nationalist shares the anger of white people in Bedfordshire at this monstrous misuse of public money. How much is the council paying the army of translators to render documents into Punjabi, Bengali, Urdu and Chinese?

Many British people today feel despair at the way in which they are being pushed to the back of the queue for jobs and housing as corrupt politicians chase the powerful 'ethnic' vote. Brits are angry at the way in which the multi-racial society was forced upon them by the gangster politicians of Westminster.

But now there is finally a political party which aims to give the British people a voice. It is the British National Party.

The BNP has pledged to repatriate Britain's immigrants quickly, efficiently and humanely. The Party promises to dismantle the £billion-a-year 'anti-racist' industry which is bleeding this country dry.

SLUM landlord Kukreja grows fat on homeless people's misery — thanks to government housing policy

Stop this wicked parasite Slum landlord profits from misery of homeless

CONVICTED slum landlord Han Kukreja is giving work to his unemployed tenants in dangerous unconditions for just one pound an hour.

Kukreja rakes in hundreds of pounds a week in housing benefits from his properties in Darlington in the North East of England.

OFFENCES

In January this year, he was ordered to pay £9,000 in fines by magistrates after being found guilty of a string of offences relating to the appalling conditions of bedsits.

Kukreja faces further prosecutions after environmental health officers inspected a large house owned by him and found dozens of defects such as unsafe fire doors, broken room heaters and filthy kitchen areas.

He has also illegally employed tenants to work cash-in-hand on demolition work at his properties.

Thanks to the government's housing policy, there are thousands of landlords like Kukreja up and down the country, feeding off the misery of the homeless and unemployed.

The tragedy is that homelessness could be ended overnight if the government halted its policy of housing so-called 'refugees'.

In the London Borough of Tower Hamlets last September, the British National Party won its first election on the issue of housing. The BNP believes Britain should stop housing third world 'refugees' and instead guarantee a home for all British people.

The BNP pledged to house every family within the Isle of Dogs ward of Tower Hamlets within six months, thanks to a legal loophole which allows local authorities to refuse to house people from outside the borough — including 'refugees'.

NEWCOMERS

Unfortunately, Labour won back the seat by registering hundreds of Asians onto the electoral roll. Tower Hamlets now cannot possibly house all the newcomers, and families there have found themselves thrown back onto the housing queue.

Labour's national policy, just like the Tories, is to continue mass immigration which will add further pressure to the housing crisis.

Only the British National Party is willing to tackle the real cause of the housing shortage, which is the flood of outsiders into our country.

Meanwhile, millions of pounds will be squandered by local authorities to pay slum landlords to house families in misery and squalor.

Bambi, a man whose time has come...

AS expected, Tony Blair — 'Bambi' as the rest of the country knows him — was last month elected as leader of the Labour Party.

Little is known about the political views of Bambi. Indeed, it appears he doesn't have any — an ideal qualification for leading Labour.

But Labour's slick marketing men are already building his image: a kind of wet British Kennedy figure who will appeal to naïve teenage voters and soft-left ex-Tories.

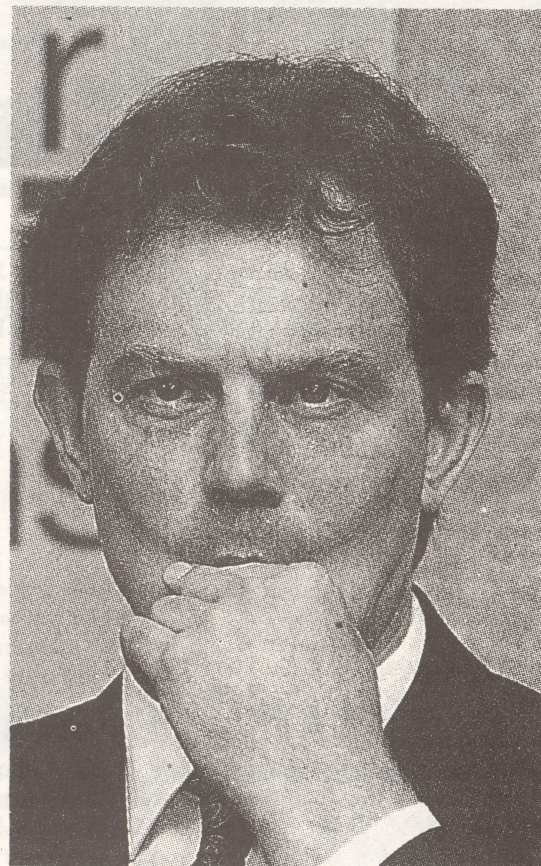

Bambi is a typical socialist in that he comes from a wealthy, public school-educated background and was a successful lawyer before being elected to Parliament.

Although Bambi himself has few ideas of any sort in his head, his controllers certainly possess a powerful hidden agenda of mischief which they will unleash in due course. Packaged like a soap powder by Labour's spin doctors, Bambi has a good chance of winning the next General Election. If Labour wins power (and there is a good chance of this if the Tories maintain their current miserable performance), the socialists have a collection of revolting policies to foist upon Britain.

A Labour government would effectively be a continuation of Tory rule: the carefully managed decline of Britain into a third-rate, third world type country. Labour will continue the mass immigration begun by the Tories. Homelessness will continue. Pornography will continue to legally flourish, and the age of homosexual buggery will almost certainly be lowered to sixteen. Homosexuality will continue to be promoted in schools.

Just like the Tories, Labour will be soft on crime, and the vicious muggers, drug dealers and pimps who infest our inner cities will become more powerful as they obtain US-style automatic weapons.

Another of Labour's 'big ideas' is the legalisation of 'soft' drugs. Just like the legalisation of 'soft' pornography, this will be justified as a 'de-criminalising' measure.

THE SEVEN (POLITICAL) DWARVES

BAMBI

NIGHT after night Labour's motley crew of slick lawyers, ex-public schoolboys, queers and race-agitators are popping up on our TV screens to dispense their perverted brand of gutter politics.

It seems the alien clique who pull Britain's political strings have decided that the Tories have made such a complete mess of the country that they are no longer electable; it is time to groom the tame 'opposition' party for power.

PROPAGANDA

The controlled media are now pushing for a Labour government, with a barrage of leftist propaganda.

Following the revolting hypocrisy of false praise for the late John Smith, the media have now cranked up a new love affair with slick lawyer Tony Blair, known as 'Bambi'.

The media have effortlessly switched their slavish devotion to Thatcherism to a new-found desire for liberal socialism. This is the way in which the gullible British public have been swindled for decades: the Tweedledee of the left alternates with the Tweedledum of the Tories to con voters into thinking they have a political 'choice'.

In fact, as this newspaper has pointed out time after time, the Lib/Lab/Con parties all share essentially the same policies. Only the window dressing is slightly different.

REVOLTING

Voters are turning in droves to Labour not because they support the revolting political agenda of that party, but because they simply want to hurt the Tories — and quite rightly.

Yet Labour's policies in fact differ very little from those of the Tories.

Just like the Tories, Labour favours continued mass immigration — despite Britain's chronic shortage of jobs and housing.

Just like the Tories, Labour wants to stay in the Common Market — despite the disastrous trade deficit this causes.

Just like the Tories, Labour is soft on crime and refuses to restore capital punishment — despite the overwhelming public support for such a measure.

ODIOUS

Labour's gang of bullies is every bit as odious as its Tory counterpart. Labour has a spokescreature for every 'minority' interest under the sun, championing such noble causes as immigrants' rights to enter Britain, lesbians' and queers' rights to adopt children, Sinn Fein's rights to hold political rallies, and all kinds of other disgusting and perverted schemes such as allowing queers to sodomise sixteen-year-old boys.

PERVERSIONS

All these perversions and many, many more, are part of Labour's political agenda.

It is an agenda shared equally by the Tory Party, but most voters are simply unaware of this.

Over the past few months, this paper has exposed a string of corrupt Labour councillors who have been jailed for corruption or who are facing trial for alleged abuses of their power. Hardly a good recommendation for a party which aims to be running the country.

Labour's vicious gang supports rights for queers, immigrants, criminals and the IRA — in fact anyone except ordinary British folk

Labour's front benchers are all 'experts' on some kind of minority issue. Dobson and Straw are constantly squealing about 'white racism', Harriet Harman (daughter of a millionaire aristocrat) is into radical 'feminism' in a big way. Margaret Becket will grovel to any trendy cause which will yield votes, while leadership-hopeful 'Bambi' does likewise.

Bernie Grant and Diane Abbot appeal mainly to immigrants.

None of these characters has an ounce of backbone. They are a sleazy, greedy, greasy bunch of opportunists who don't give a damn about the British people. They only want to further their own sordid careers and are out for the main chance.

Anyone stupid enough to vote for this bunch deserves all they get.

BRITISH TOURIST IN STOLEN IDENTITY HORROR

AN innocent British man found himself branded a drug smuggler in Thailand after his passport was stolen and used by suspected drug smugglers.

Drug smuggling carries the death

Trevor Lakin's horror quickly turned to puzzlement, as he knew that Robert was in fact in England at his girlfriend's house only a few doors away.

British police officers immediately contacted Bangkok and confirmed the blunder. The arrested man was in fact John Duru from Ghana, and he was travelling on Robert Lakin's passport which had been stolen some months previously.

DRUG SMUGGLERS

The case has highlighted the huge international trade in stolen passports, which are often used by drug smugglers, illegal immigrants or terrorists to enter Britain and other Western countries.

African drug suspect John Duru was alleged to be carrying 8lb of heroin with an estimated British street value of half a million pounds. He was charged under the name on Robert Lakin's passport, which had been doctored and the picture replaced.

British Embassy officials are increasingly concerned about the flow of drugs from Thailand. Forty-five Britons are serving jail sentences in Thailand for drug offences.

The British National Party has vowed to smash the drugs trade by halting the massive flow of visitors from third world countries into Britain. The BNP also believes British police should be given tougher powers to round up drug-pushers on the streets.

Britain's favourite comic banned by 'Anti-racist' freaks

COMEDIAN Bernard Manning (Right) has slammed "petty-minded" race relations commissars in Nottingham who have banned him from the city's civic halls. The Nottingham branch of the 'Campaign for Racial Equality' (CRE) claims Bernard's jokes are too "racist." CRE spokesman Milton Crosdale said: "If he can't raise a laugh without resorting to racist and sexist jokes, he shouldn't be on the stage."

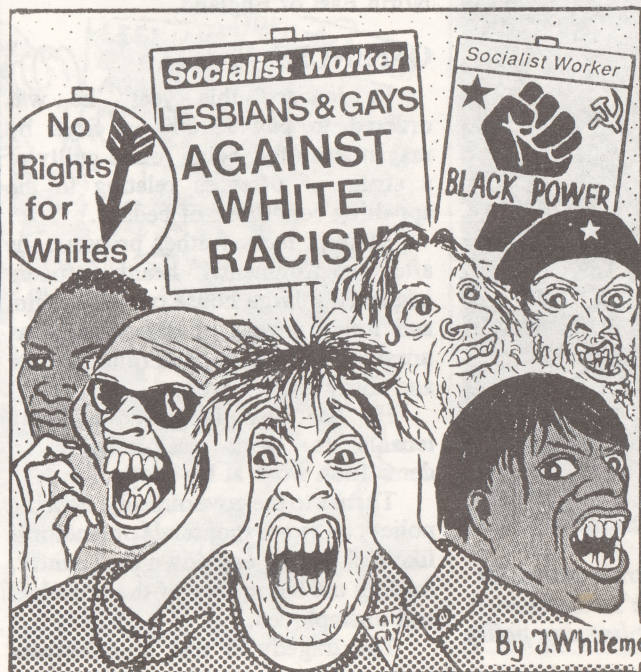

Despite being voted Britain's top comedian, Bernard Manning is unofficially banned from the television because of his alleged 'racism'. Yet between 40 and 50 per cent of the audience at his shows are non-white — testifying to the harmless nature of his jokes, which send up white people as well as blacks. But the CRE killjoys are not amused.

Thankfully, Bernard Manning has had the courage to defy the hate-filled morons of the CRE and continues to perform on stage — to the delight of audiences from all over Britain.

This latest arrogant diktat from the self-appointed race relations 'experts' of the CRE confirms what the BNP has long believed: The Campaign for Racial Equality is an evil organisation that should be closed down right away. The CRE's stupid antics, far from stopping 'racism' in fact only serve to fuel hatred between black and white.

THEY'RE ONLY AGAINST 'RACIST' VIOLENCE.

WE'RE AGAINST ALL VIOLENCE!

UNHOLY MATRIMONY

Migrants in 'wedding' swindle

ACCORDING to the Government, 'primary' immigration has all but ceased.

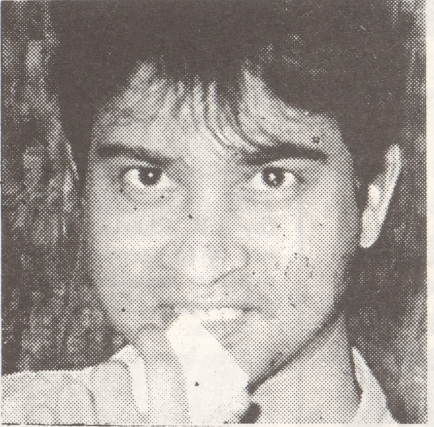

Yet it could not be simpler for illegal migrants to gain a British passport and permanent citizenship.

All the illegal immigrant needs to do is find the name, birthplace and date of birth of a dead person who was born in Britain.

ILLEGAL IMMIGRANT

They can then send for a copy of the dead person's birth certificate, which enables them to apply for a passport, national insurance number and other important documents. Once the illegal immigrant enters Britain, he or she can apply for social security benefits and a council house. The falsely-obtained documents also enable reported how the documents of a dead Asian named Azlam Ali were used by illegal immigrant Mamunul Haque to establish himself here with a British passport.

ILLEGAL immigrant Mamunul Haque used the birth certificate of a dead Asian man to falsely obtain a British passport and take up permanent residence here. This method is being used by thousands of other illegals in the UK

Haque recently acquired a fiancé, Shirin Ayrin, who is in the country legally.

HUGE RACKET

Immigration barrister Akbar Ali Malik commented: "It's a huge racket and very difficult to stamp out, largely because of lack of cross-referencing of births and deaths by the Home Office. I know of a dozen cases where this has happened."

Illegal immigrants pay agents up to £5,000 for details of dead Asians born in Britain. One agent, Mohammed Rafiq, uses his religious group Islamic Services International as a front for his activities.

At his home in East London Rafiq told a reporter posing as an illegal immigrant "people normally charge £4,000 or £5,000 for this, but I can do it for £2,000."

Illegal migrant Mamunul Haque disappeared after being investigated by the immigration authorities, but surfaced some weeks later for his wedding to Shirin Ayrin. Over 400 guests were invited to the wedding at Holy Trinity church, Poplar.

FAMILY'S FURY OVER PSYCHO KILLER

"I'd shoot him" says victim's sister

THE psychotic killer of Catherine Ayling was described as an "evil bd" by the victim's sister as he faced imprisonment for the savage slaying of the 24-year-old in 1989.

Curtis Howard became besotted with Catherine whilst she was on a student exchange visit to America in 1989. Although Catherine was friendly towards Howard, she made it obvious that she wanted no intimate contact.

OBSESSED

Rejected, Howard became obsessed with her and pursued her back to death penalty. It is clear that the Lib/Lab/Con politicians have neither the guts nor the stature to carry out such a move.

Only a British National Party government could restore capital punishment, because only the BNP agrees with the democratic wish of the British people to do so.

VICTIM Catherine Ayling (Right) was stabbed ten times during a frenzied attack by Howard. Under a British National Party government, psychotic murderers such as Curtis Howard would face the death penalty, in line with public support for capital punishment

PSYCHO Curtis Howard fled to America after killing Catherine Ayling. Outrageously, the so-called 'Commission for Racial Equality' tried to block his extradition back to Britain — they said our legal system was 'racist'

England following the death of her father, whose grave he later desecrated in a jealous rage.

After stalking Catherine and making arrogant threats to her family, Howard was eventually caught by police and deported back to America.

But he returned on a false passport and tracked her down once again.

Howard slashed the tyres of the young woman's car, and lay in wait for her return. As Catherine bent down to examine the damage to her car, he stabbed her nine times and then cold-bloodedly slit her throat and dumped her body in the boot of his hired car.

ARRESTED

Following the discovery of Catherine's body two days later, Howard was arrested at gunpoint by FBI agents in Boston and eventually extradited to Britain.

Howard pleaded guilty to manslaughter on the grounds of diminished responsibility, and sentence was deferred until a later date.

Another of Catherine's sisters, Teresa Smith, said of Howard: "I would shoot him myself. I want him to suffer and make him feel pain."

HANGMAN'S NOOSE

The British National Party agrees entirely with the Catherine Ayling's family. Under a BNP government, garbage like Curtis Howard would face the hangman's noose.

Under the present system, however, Howard will no doubt spend a few years in jail (at an estimated cost of £100,000 a year to the taxpayer) with the prospect of an early release when his social workers believe he has 'reformed'.

This newspaper believes crimes like that of Curtis Howard, the Moors Murderers and similar horrors present an overwhelming case for restoring the

'Wilding' gang rapists in new reign of terror

BRITISH Nationalist has recently reported on the growing problem of US-style 'wilding' gangs who roam British streets raping and randomly attacking innocent members of the public.

Often the attacks are not mentioned in the national press, for fear of upsetting the 'politically correct' lobby. But BN has a network of correspondents nationwide who make it their business to collect local news cuttings and feed them into our national data bank.

The item on the right, from the Midlands' Evening Post newspaper (05.03.94), is just one of scores which BN has recently received. By collecting articles from local papers, we are able to get a much truer picture of what is really happening in Britain than by just relying on the national press, which tends to filter out or suppress crime stories which are not 'politically acceptable'.

Thanks to the weakness of the Tory government and Labour local authorities, Britain's streets are rapidly declining into lawless anarchy, where the rule of the jungle applies.

In local councils run by Labour's 'loony left', the view is that violent thugs deserve 'sympathy' and 'understanding'. The message is: if you want a rapist for a neighbour, vote Labour.

GANG RAPE ORDEAL

A TEENAGE woman was subjected to a terrifying gang rape by four men as she walked home from a nightclub.

The 18-year-old was abducted in Cheltenham, Gloucestershire, and driven to an area of waste ground before being raped.

A car pulled alongside her in the St James's Square area of the town and she was bundled inside.

The dark-coloured saloon was driven to waste ground near to a car park in the lower High Street area.

Gloucestershire police said the men dumped their victim before driving off.

The woman raised the alarm and was taken to Cheltenham General Hospital for treatment.

A police spokesman said they were hunting for four black men, in their 20s, who were believed to be from the West Midlands.

ASIAN WIFE SAYS: CRACK DOWN ON ARRANGED MARRIAGE

An Asian mother living in Bradford has launched a campaign to tighten the law on arranged marriages. Sughra Begum says the practice is causing havoc as wives and husbands are left in the lurch after only months of marriage.

Men often use local girls, she says, to gain British citizenship and "gain the benefits of social security, housing and hospital treatment."

At the moment, an immigrant needs to remain married for only twelve months to qualify for citizenship. He or she is then free to divorce and begin a new life in Britain. Mrs Begum wants the qualifying period extended to seven years, with the option of repatriating an immigrant whose marriage had failed.

Sughra Begum battled for six years to bring her Pakistani husband into Britain, but he deserted her after only six months. She wants the whole Asian community to unite in "stopping the scroungers and parasites" who use a marriage of convenience simply to enter the UK. And she says it might cut the spiralling crime rate among Asian youths caught up in the misery of a broken home.

The British National Party agrees with Mrs Begum's criticism of arranged marriages — but would go further, and outlaw ALL immigration from Asian countries.

The BNP feels Asian and African people would have a much better chance of making a happy marriage in their own countries, where they can raise their families within their own cultural traditions.

Mass immigration puts huge pressure and strain upon the British economy, and upon already scarce jobs and housing.

SLAUGHTER ON THE STREETS...

Why did Gary Willmer die?

REGGAE ROW 'ATTACK'

A MAN was beaten to death after complaining about loud reggae music, a jury at Cardiff Crown Court was told last month.

John Purbrick, 35, died from massive internal bleeding after 28 separate injuries, prosecutor Richard Thomas QC said.

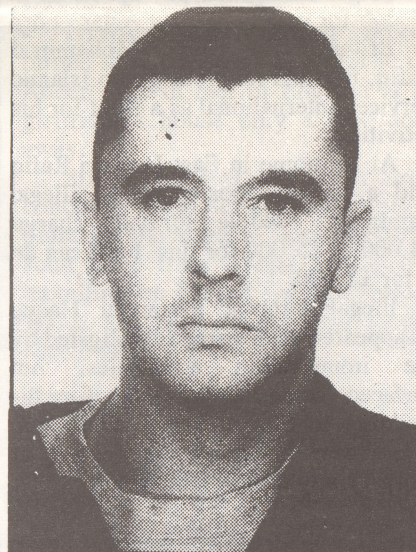

Michael Gilfilin of Grangetown, Cardiff denied murder. He was alleged to have punched and kicked Mr Purbrick, banged his head on a concrete path, thrown him down stairs and stamped on his chest. Mr Purbrick died later in hospital. The case continues.

A BIRTHDAY celebration turned to tragedy when a party guest was brutally stabbed to death outside an Enfield night club.

The Old Bailey was told that Gary Willmer, 25, was waiting outside the Palladium night club last year when he was ambushed and stabbed through the heart.

Prosecutor John Bevan told the court a car containing two Turkish Cypriot brothers, Onur and Ugur Oguzca, drove up to Mr Willmer and two of his friends. Another car containing an illegal immigrant known as Mustapha was also there, the court was told. Mr Bevan said there was a scuffle during which Gary Willmer was stabbed by Onur Oguzca. Oguzca then hit Mr Willmer's friend with a metal bar.

John Bevan said the fight finished when Ugur Oguzca threatened the group with a gun and ordered them to back off while the gang fled. When Onur was arrested, a police search of two cars revealed weapons including an imitation gun, metal bar and sheath knife.

Onur Oguzca denies murder and manslaughter. The case continues.

BRITISH NATIONALIST NEEDS YOUR HELP!

BRITISH NATIONALIST is pleased to announce that sales are at record levels, thanks largely to increasing bulk orders by local units.

The massive influx of new members since the election of Derek Beackon last September has also helped boost circulation, thanks to the greatly increased number of subscriptions by individual members and supporters of the BNP.

One thing which readers constantly ask for is more news about BNP activities up and down the country. We know for a fact that BNP activity is now at its highest level since the party was formed, but some units are still not letting us know about their good work! What we need from all units are regular reports of activities, preferably with a photo or a local press cutting recording the event.

Another service for which we are grateful is the sending in of press cuttings from local papers on issues such as race, immigration and crime, which are often suppressed from the national press. We have recently been able to expose a number of corrupt Labour councillors as a result of local press cuttings sent in by readers. Such items might have little impact as local news, but when assembled together form a strong case against the Establishment.

Please help us by keeping those news items rolling in.

Sir: In a recent issue of BN you report that attacks by red mobs upon BNP activists are useful to, if not actually planned by, the authorities ('Why Tory government is using communist mobsters' — Nov 1993).

This is all too evident.

The whole gang of three at Westminster has made it abundantly clear that they are far closer in sympathy and character to those who openly claim to be communist than they are to the BNP. They have revealed their true colours — even 'right wing' Tories adopting the red tactic of calling the BNP 'neo-Nazis'.

What we should be doing to even up the score is to refer to the Tories as 'neo-communists'.

R.D. MOLESWORTH

Sir: So an RAF servicewoman has been awarded around £30,000 compensation for 'unfair dismissal' due to the fact that she became pregnant whilst on duty.

The military law clearly states that any serviceman (or woman) on active duty who deliberately makes himself or herself medically unfit for combat faces court martial — or in some cases summary execution.

While it is perfectly true that it takes two to make a baby, this woman must have been aware of the risk of pregnancy.

More importantly, the huge sums of money recently awarded to some of these pregnant servicewomen must make our war veterans feel very bitter. There are thousands of British ex-servicemen, many of them disabled, who risked their lives and health to serve their country in the numerous wars and conflicts in which Britain has been involved. Many of these old soldiers (and their wives) have had to live on a miserable pittance of a pension in return for their services.

For them to read about the huge rewards dished out by industrial tribunals must be devastating.

If the Government is trying to save money from the defence budget, it seems a strange way to go about it. Some estimates put the eventual legal bill from these cases at up to half a billion pounds.

S.T. SPENCER

Sir: In the controlled press recently was an item about a Trade Union Congress (TUC) campaign to "fight the growing number of racial attacks around the country."

My first reaction was that this was wonderful news — having read in your newspaper about some of the vicious racial attacks perpetrated against white people.

But it seems the TUC was only referring to the much rarer examples of racial attacks against black people, and the campaign was in fact being launched by the curiously titled 'TUC Black Workers Conference'.

If the TUC was to hold a 'White Workers Conference', the media would surely call it 'racist' because it implied the exclusion of blacks. It could be argued that it is whites who are more likely to be discriminated against, particularly in jobs and housing, as was demonstrated in Tower Hamlets. The BNP won its by-election last year precisely on this issue.

So often we see council job adverts stating that special consideration will be given to this or that ethnic minority group, yet it is illegal to discriminate in this way in favour of whites!

No less an organisation than the BBC has announced that almost half the places in its 1994-95 training programme will be reserved for ethnic minorities, despite the fact that the ethnic population even in London is 'only' around twenty-five per cent.

The sick, hypocritical apparatus of 'anti-racism' is creating a climate of fear where white people are continually being blamed for the world's ills.

ULSTER FOLK WELCOME NEW B.N.P. UNIT!

THE British National party has long had a presence in Ulster, which the Party regards as one of the most patriotic areas of the UK.

The local press in Belfast and elsewhere are now taking an interest in the BNP's plans for expansion in the province, as can be judged from the rather panic-stricken article reproduced here (Right).

The British National Party's firm stand against the IRA has already won vigorous support from Ulster folk who are sick and tired of the old politicians' pussy-footing appeasement of the terrorists.

The BNP is the only mainland political party to maintain a serious presence in Ulster. Whilst firmly supporting Ulster's continued union with Britain, the BNP regards itself as non-sectarian and welcomes support from the Catholic community as well as from Protestants. Since both sides of the community share a common racial heritage with their neighbours on the British mainland, it is clearly in everyone's interest to maintain the political link between Ulster and Britain. A BNP government would support equal rights for both religious groups — but would ruthlessly exterminate the marxist IRA to enable peace to return to Ulster.

BNP set to fight seats in Ulster

By Darwin Templeton,
Investigations Correspondent

RIGHT wing extremists in the British National Party are planning to contest council seats in Ulster.

The controversial group has launched a recruitment drive across the province — and said it could soon be strong enough to stand for election.

Members of a BNP branch based in east Belfast have been selling its paper and handing out leaflets in a number of towns, including Coleraine, Newtownards, Portadown and Ballymena.

And they claim to have been flooded with messages of support and enquiries about the party.

Among BNP policies are the forced repatriation of "non-white immigrants", the withdrawal of Britain from the European Union and the restoration of the death penalty.

Sensation

The party wants the IRA to be "smashed" by a military offensive and says that "Ulster is British forever".

The party caused a sensation in London by winning a council seat there last year and is hoping to win more in the local elections on Thursday.

The local regional organiser, who did not wish to be named, said: "We are not Nazis — Nazis belong to Germany in the 1930s, not Britain in the 1990s."

"We are patriots who want to save our nation and have been receiving a warm welcome on the doorsteps.

"If this level of support keeps up, we should soon be in a position to stand for election."

But a spokesman for Youth Against Racism in Europe said: "We are aware of the presence of these fascists in Ulster."

Cloak

"They are quite small in number, but even a handful of members can be potentially dangerous."

"They will try to tag onto loyalist groups, but we are sure that once people see through the cloak of respectability, the BNP will be run out of here."

"Fascists have been buoyed up by electoral success across Europe and people must organise against them."

ANAL turns up in Northern Ireland — and gets plenty of opposition!

Would you believe it? The odious ANAL (Anti-Nazi League) crowd are now turning up in Northern Ireland. The picture here shows a recent ANAL demonstration in Coleraine, complete with the usual 'Socialist Worker' posters and 'Stop the Nazis' lollipops.

Is there then a sinister 'Nazi' threat in Coleraine, of all places? Well, not exactly. This mob has been recruited to agitate for the sacking of University of Ulster lecturer Professor Richard Lynn. Professor Lynn's crime? He has been carrying out research into the relationship between race and intelligence, and that, in these politically correct times, simply is not allowed!

It does not matter in the slightest if Professor Lynn's and others' researches establish that there is a definite link between race and intelligence. Facts and truth matter little today beside the all-important imperative of defending the prevailing 'liberal' ideology of race equality. If the poor Professor has offended against this dogma he has to go!

The ANAL crowd didn't get things all their own way, however. Apparently a group of about 50 local youths appeared and gave them the bird, at one point scuffling with the 'Anti-Nazis' and relieving them of some of their placards. Only police intervention prevented things turning out worse for them. According to the report we received on the incident, the ANAL organisers were quite horrified at encountering opposition in such strength in Northern Ireland.

Angry scuffles at anti-Nazi march

By Maureen Coleman

ANGRY scuffles broke out at an Anti-Nazi protest in Coleraine when a group of youths shouting fascist slogans confronted the marchers.

Around 50 youths from Belfast, Coleraine and Derry travelled to the weekend rally in the Diamond to protest against University of Ulster Professor, Richard Lynn, who is accused of carrying out racist research.

Banners

During the protest, which was held in Coleraine's main shopping area, a group of skinheads emerged from a nearby pub and began chanting Nazi slogans.

They then lunged forward and attempted to remove banners and placards. A confrontation between the two groups broke out but the RUC quickly intervened. No one was injured in the scuffle.

The protest rally was organised by the local branch of the Anti-Nazi League who are calling for the sacking of Professor Lynn.

According to the ANL, Professor Lynn has been carrying out research to show that black people are less intelligent than whites.

Rally row: Marchers converge on town centre

The ANL claim Professor Lynn has received funding from the American Pioneer Fund — an organisation it claims is "clearly racist".

ANL spokesman Jim Larmour said the attempts by the skinheads to disrupt the peaceful protest highlighted the importance of holding such a rally.

He said: "It is crucial for us to defend these words, and

'ANTI-NAZIS' IN COLERAINE

From one poster it looks as if they got some help from France

Establishment gets vicious over BNP success

CONSIDERING the fact that the British National Party has experienced three major electoral successes during the past twelve months, it is not surprising that the Establishment has reacted with alarm and panic.

In September of last year, when Derek Beackon became Britain's first BNP councillor, establishment politicians and their apparatchiks in the race industry threw a wobbly.

Within 48 hours of Derek's victory, National Organiser Richard Edmonds and other senior BNP personnel were behind bars facing trumped up charges of public disorder. Even BN editor John Morse was put in the frame, though the judge later admitted the evidence was so flimsy the case was thrown out of court.

HARASSMENT

Nevertheless, it soon became clear that politicians from the Prime Minister downwards had ordered local police chiefs to "collar the lot" — BNP leaders across the country reported increased levels of police harassment.

It seems the Establishment has now hit on a formula to entrap BNP activists.

The method is simple, and involves communist troublemakers acting in collusion with the police.

The reds create a disturbance or argument with BNP activists, whereupon the police suddenly appear and collar the unsuspecting BNP men.

The BNP activists then face various serious disorder charges, and a left-wing jury, suitably propagandised by the 'anti-racist' media, invariably convicts on the flimsiest (or even non-existent) evidence.

A disturbing number of these incidents have been occurring all over the country over the past few months, and all activists should be on their guard. To put it bluntly, BNP activists are being 'fitted up'.

The BNP normally has a good relationship with ordinary bobbies on the beat, but it must be remembered that the senior police ranks are highly politicised, and almost always subscribe to the left-wing, 'anti-racist' views of their political masters. Otherwise they would not be promoted to such positions.

It is essential that BNP activists avoid needless confrontations with communist agitators. Often, such conflicts begin with verbal abuse by the reds and escalate to minor scuffles. Remember, that even the most minor physical contact, such as a push, could be exaggerated by the authorities into a serious disorder charge, resulting in several years in jail.

On the whole, most BNP units are sensible enough to avoid unnecessary violence such as this. Quite apart from the danger of arrest, it does not do our image any good with the public to be seen exchanging insults with communist gutter trash.

CANVASSING

It must be repeated again and again, that the BNP is now in the business above all of winning votes. The Millwall by-election, the council elections, and most recently the Dagenham Parliamentary by-election, have shown that the BNP has found the way to achieve big votes. That method is: canvassing.

A BNP campaign which involves large numbers of doorstep visits is almost certain to win big votes. Millwall was won by door-to-door canvassing. The big votes in London during the council elections were won by door-to-door canvassing (often the Party was only able to canvass ten or twenty per cent of the houses due to lack of manpower, yet even this effort yielded votes of over twenty per cent). John Tyndall's retained deposit at Dagenham was won by door-to-door canvassing. If we had had time to canvass every house in the borough, the Party's vote would have been many times higher still, and the BNP would have finished a strong second.

SUPPORT FOR BNP POLICIES

Countless opinion polls have shown that over eighty per cent of British people agree with BNP policies. It is therefore essential that we knock on their doors and talk to them, in order to win their confidence.

In those areas where this is done, the results can be astonishing. BNP canvassers are often amazed to discover the high level of support for our policies. A few brief words and a friendly smile can quickly convert this support into hard votes.

THIS front page article from the Lincolnshire Echo (Above) illustrates the police harassment faced by BNP units. According to Sgt. Ian Watkins of Lincolnshire police, the BNP is not an illegal organisation but is nevertheless being "monitored" by Special Branch. Since the BNP is a perfectly legal political party, what reason could the police have for "monitoring" us other than to pass on information to our political opponents? The police would be better advised to monitor the Labour Party, many of whose councillors have been convicted of crimes ranging from fraud to sexually assaulting children.

Special Branch monitors BNP drive

BRITISH National Party activists are recruiting members from a Lincoln city centre pub, it can be revealed today.

But their anti-fascist opponents in the county have pledged a counter propaganda campaign.

Special Branch officers attached to Lincolnshire Police are monitoring the activities of BNP supporters in the city.

Lincoln and District Trades Council secretary Phil Bradley said: "A group of 10 or 12 BNP supporters have been seen recruiting in the Stonebow area."

"They also meet regularly in a city centre pub."

"I would like to see a campaign mounted by the local labour and trade union movement to counter the claims made by the BNP."

The Echo has obtained a copy of a BNP recruiting leaflet now circulating in the city.

It says the party supports the death penalty, is against the Maastricht Treaty and opposes mass immigration.

It gives a Lincoln PO Box number for potential members to apply to.

London-based anti-fascist investigators at Searchlight say the party has toned down its overtly racist stance.

But researcher Peter Brighton says they know of BNP figures in the county with links to ultra right-wing white supremacist groups.

A spokesman for the BNP in London said: "We are recruiting and getting new members from all over the country."

"If we had proper media coverage in an unbiased way, this country would soon be a Nationalist state."

Sergeant Ian Watkins of Lincolnshire police said that the BNP was not a prescribed organisation but like other groups its members were "monitored" by Special Branch men.

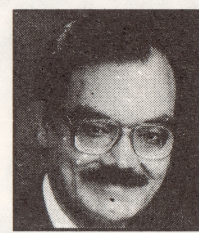

He said the force constantly checked the level of racially motivated attacks and the county had not seen a recent increase.

But he warned: "The police will take action against any individual or group whose behaviour breaks the law and goes beyond the bounds of political debate."

Anti-race crackdown welcomed

by Bhavesh Patel

NEW government plans to crack down on racial harassment, proposing prison sentences of up to six months and fines of £5,000, have been welcomed by local community

PLEASED: Mr Manzoor Moghal, race relations committee chairman

ers will provide a strong and effective

THIS article is typical of many reporting the Government's plan to 'crack down' on 'racism'. The Tories, along with their Labour and Liberal collaborators, are determined to win cheap votes from immigrant groups by promoting more oppressive 'anti-racist' laws against white people

What we stand for

- The establishment of a government of national unity that will put an end to nationally divisive party warfare; the return of leadership and statesmanship to British affairs.
- An end to immigration and a start to repatriation.
- British withdrawal from the European Community: trade with Europe where it suits us but no political ties.
- The disbanding of the multi-racial Commonwealth and its replacement by a new Commonwealth of self-governing white states.
- British ownership and control of British industry and resources.
- Protection of British industry by the selective exclusion of foreign manufactured goods from the British market.
- An end to the financial swindle that causes inflation and slump, and its replacement by a sane and fair financial system that will give the people the purchasing power to buy the goods they produce.
- The subordination of the power of the City to the power of government; and the harnessing of the City to the needs of British industry.
- The regeneration of British farming, with the object of achieving the maximum self-sufficiency in food; also the restoration of our fishing industry by protection of our traditional fishing grounds.
- A healthy environment for a healthy people — the protection of our countryside and an end to the architectural disfigurement of our towns and cities.
- Tougher treatment of criminals, including the return of the death penalty.
- A return to traditional methods of education, with stronger discipline in the classroom and the sacking of 'trendy' teachers.
- An alternative defence strategy: withdrawal from NATO; closure of all foreign military and air bases in Britain; British withdrawal from the war in former Yugoslavia, where no British interest is at stake; the bringing home of British forces from Germany; the strengthening of Britain's defences and a position of armed neutrality.
- An end to overseas aid and the allocation of the money saved to the financing of repatriation and greater help for the needy at home.
- The crushing of the IRA, the termination of the Anglo-Irish Agreement and firm support for the loyalist majority in Northern Ireland.
- Repeal of the laws permitting homosexuality and abortion (except where the latter is the result of rape or necessary on medical grounds), the wiping out of AIDS and a return to healthy moral values aimed at strengthening the family and community.
